Studying Abroad

The Netherlands are well known for their international society and culture. Students from foreign countries are a common sight at dutch Universities and there are various options for students from abroad to study at a dutch University. An aspect that appeals to most foreign students is the dutch way of application. Dutch law forbids the Universities to only accept students based on their grades. With all Tilburg University courses it is possible to study one year abroad while getting accreditation for the courses taken. However it is to be considered that in the Netherlands Studies are only partially subsidised by the government and tuition fees around 2.000 Euros per year are to be expected.
