History

The first Swedish paper mills were established as early as the 16th century.

All paper was made by hand until 1832, when the first paper machine was built in Sweden

Early paper making was carried out by skilled craftsmen who moved from mill to mill, even emigrating when opportunities arose. It took several years for apprentice paper makers to become skilled, but by moving from place to place they were able to introduce new methods, tools and ideas to other mills, and also learnt from them.
